

YORKVILLE GOES ON A MELODY SPREE IN FAMILY CONCERT

Lusty Notes of Dozen Dialects Fused in a Great Crucible of Song.

ITS LIKE NEVER HEARD.

Thousands Pipe Up in John Jay Park and New York Has Something New.

Who thought the only music in Johnny Meahan's young soul was his morning cry up the dumb-waiter, "Butcher-er-er!"

Everybody. Who took off hats, clapped hands and yelled "Great, Johnny, great!"

Everybody. When Johnny, full throated youngster of fourteen, sang "America I Love You" and a thousand mixed voices joined in the chorus in front of the playhouse in John Jay Park last night, even the inmates of Blackwell's Island just over the river could hear the song.

It was indeed the greatest family song fest that part of Yorkville has joined in. Babes in their mother's arms and babes in their little baggies sang; the mothers did, too. Old men in blue flannel shirts and overalls, young men in sport shirts and Sunday clothes, let go their lusty notes. A dozen different dialects were fused in the crucible of song, but everybody sang. It was hard to sit or stand by—and see young Ralph Grosvenor, the director, thrusting his arms upward for a high note and putting the air for a soft note—and not sing.

EVEN THE BLACKWELL'S PRISONERS ENJOYED IT.

Those who were unavoidably detained on Blackwell's Island must have thought the march to Mexico was on, for the program of the night turned to patriotic melody. Better dressed audiences in great auditoriums may have sung with more perfection, but they never had the words down pat like last night's outpouring. Youngsters eight and ten knew the words of "Auld Lang Syne" as well as "America" and when the cornet and trombone started the national air there was no looking around to see who was going to stand up first. The singers rose in mass, uncovered, and sang as though they wanted their voices to blow down the playhouse.

The folks around John Jay Park had waited three weeks for this opportunity to show that song dwells in a tenement just as much as it does in a mansion. It rained last Thursday night and the two preceding Thursday nights, but that pent-up song was all the better for the waiting, especially with the air charged with martial waves.

MRS. FRANKLIN AND HER GRAND IDEA.

When Mr. Grosvenor, with megaphone, tried to keep the children quiet and couldn't, Mrs. J. Dwight Franklin, who conceived the idea of a free-for-all community singing party, tried to. Of course she thought that being a woman would make a lot of difference and the children would do just as she said. But she failed. A thousand people bent on singing is like a storage battery. Let loose, it is hard to stop.

Looking over at a big policeman Mrs. Franklin cried: "Please keep those little ones quiet." "Why, the idea!" said the copper. "Keep these kids quiet? Never! And the crowd sang 'Dixie' louder than ever. They would have that last chorus. A stout Russian woman kept the song up after the others had quit in spite of the fact that the cornet and trombone stopped and she had to sing 'Dixie' in the Russian tongue. And in Russian it sounds like Chopin's funeral march. But then the lady was singing and of course everybody was happy.

When a song was wanted Mr. Grosvenor put the choice to a vote. Maybe it was a vote, but it sounded a lot like one big demand. Not for the songs they sang on Broadway. Oh, no. Around John Jay Park most of the folks live in model tenements. They are accustomed to good things, especially good American things. The park is surrounded by model tenements. They have pretty shades on their lamps, tiled bath rooms, up-to-date kitchens and other nice things. These cultivate taste, so one can't join off devilish songs from Tin Pan Alley on these people. They wanted "Dixie." "My Old Kentucky Home." "Sweet and Low." "My Hometown." "Over the Ocean"—the real American stuff that made a hit long before piano keys got hot with the chop, chop, chop and bang, bang, bang of routine.

NEIGHBORHOOD OPEN AIR CONCERTS WILL SPREAD.

It was one grand, melodious spree. Especially for the youngsters. It gave them a chance to show they know how to sing as well as behave.

without being hushed by the warning that the baby will wake up. There is the Home Hospital right alongside of the park, but do you suppose the patients were bothered? Not on your life. Like Blackwell's Island, the window lights were asleep in the hospital just two hours later than in usual and in every window some one was sitting.

OLD-TIME ACTOR DIES.

Marcus Moriaty, Recently in Mexico, Was in 60th Year.

The curtain has rung down on the career of another old-time actor, Marcus Moriaty. He died Tuesday night at his home, No. 110 West Twenty-third Street, in his sixty-sixth year. In recent years he had been playing in the movies.

After the war he became an actor, starting with St. Victor's stock company. His last dramatic engagement was with "Huntly Pulls the Strings."

Although never an object of charity, his dying request was that he be buried in the Actor's Fund plot and his wishes were carried out by the A. F. of M. and the A. O. U. F. M.

ULSTER NATIONALISTS MEET.

Consider Proposal for Settlement of Irish Question.

BELFAST, June 23 (Tele. London).—A conference of Ulster Nationalists was held here today to consider David Lloyd George's proposal for the settlement of the Irish question. John Richmond presided and was supported by Joseph Devlin.

Delegates from all the Ulster counties and the Bishop of Down were present. In all, 1,000 delegates were in attendance.

EXPLOSIONS KILL FIREMEN.

Two Are Burned Under Falling Walls and Flaming Bath House.

PITTSBURGH, June 23 (Tele. London).—Fire in the boiler room of the Grand Caronde hotel here today killed two firemen and injured three others. The fire broke out in the boiler room of the hotel, not far from the center of the city, and spread to-day to two explosions of gas.

Two firemen entering the building at the moment were burned under falling walls and the flames, spreading rapidly, could not be reached.
